BOWLING PAINS LIABLE TO SPOIL GOOD SPORT

Bowling is one of America's greatest winter recreational activities. It is a good healthful sport. To the beginner however, bowling is a onesided exercise as he has not learned to coordinate all of the muscles of his body into the delivery of the ball, and consequently strains muscles and injures ligaments. With this he is liable to misalign the hips or vertebrae which would result in pain and soreness. Sometimes a veteran bowler slips or loses his footing and a like injury can result. These conditions unless attended to can become quite troublesome.

Wisconsin Lawyers Have a Good Record

The board of governors of the State Bar of Wisconsin learned at a meeting in Milwaukee recently that the legal profession of Wisconsin is "exceedingly clean and very ethical."

The report was made by Lawrence M. Engelhard, LaCrosse, chairman of the bar's grievance committee. Of the bar's more than 6.000 lawyers only 113 had complaints filed against them since last June, the grievance committee reported. Of the 113 lawyers complained about, four surrendered their licenses voluntarily. Not more than 10 per cent of the complaints require any disciplinary action or admonitions.

Of the 113 complaints filed against lawyers in eight of the nine bar districts, 15 involved excessive fees and 16 related to collections and misuse of funds. The other complaints related to careless handling of probate matters, conflict of interest with clients' rights. misunderstanding of court procedure, neglect of duties, dishonest advice, solicitation of improper advertising,

In spite of this fine record the board of governors was not ready to recommend the establishment of a security program to reimburse clients when they lose money due to embezzlement by their lawyers. Glen

Campbell, Janesville, who is chairman of the committee making a study of client security programs, reported that further inquiries should be made before any action is taken for or against such a program. There have been objections in the past by lawyers who felt that the establishment of such a program by the State Bar would be a confession of guilt or an admission of unreliability on the part of Wisconsin lawyers. Others have taken almost the opposite view. They feel that the Wisconsin bar's reputation speaks for itself and the establishment of a security fund would be in fact a strong indication of faith in the Wisconsin bar.

However, no action was taken since as Carroll Callahan, Columbus, bar president. said, whatever steps might be taken must await the committee's complete study and recommendation to be presented at the bar's summer meeting in June.

It seems likely that the bar will take positive action on this subject soon for such action would not only increase public confidence in the members of the Wisconsin bar but it also would give the members of the bar an incentive to strict enforcement of the bar's rules on handling of clients'

Information Comes Too Late

The revelation by William Pawley, former United States Ambassador to Peru and Brazil, that he was sent to Cuba in 1958, just three weeks before Fidel Castro seized power, to try to get a "caretaker government" accepted by Fulgencio Batista opens grave doubt as to the wisdom of silence on the matter at the time. Why didn't our State Department say something about its doubts concerning Fidel Castro?

According to Mr. Pawley, State Department officials and a representative of the Central Intelligence Agency met at his home to discuss what to do about Cuba. Mr. Pawley says he made the suggestion that someone go to Batista and try to persuade him to step down in favor of a government made up of his enemies but not including Castro. After a phone call to John Foster Dulles, Mr. Pawley, an acquaintance of Batista for 30 years, was picked to go.

His proposition was that Batista and his family go to Daytona Beach while a military junta was formed to take over the control in Cuba and "to oppose Dr. Castro's rebels." Castro would then either have to lay down his arms "or admit he was a revolutionary fighting against anybody only because he wanted power, not because he was

Mr. Pawley says "the only thing in my judgment that made it fail to work was to say 'if you will do this it will have the approval of the American government." He wasn't permitted to go this far by Assistant Secretary of State for Latin American Affairs Roy Rubottom (who later warned against the effect of Caryl Chessman's execution in Latin America).

Whether or not such an assurance could have been made to Batista at this juncture is immaterial. But. if Mr. Pawley's account is accurate, it is obvious that the State Department or the C. I. A. had some serious doubts about Castro's aims and friends. Why wasn't this doubt made public? To what vague end was there established this secrecy? The first indications that Castro was not a true democrat or that he had pink tinges came from right wing publications and organizations long after Batista had fled.

We doubt that Mr. Pawley's strategem would have stopped Castro since he could have argued convincingly that any government set up in Havana was only a stooge for the departed Batista. Castro's fervent following at the time was immense and was not solely based upon his opposition to Ba-

But the efforts to dislodge Batista by the United States, later accused of friendship with the dictator, and certainly any evidence of Communist ties to Castro should have been made available to the American — and the Cuban — public.

A Code for County Hospitals

A code of behavior is a good thing for most people. However most codes are drafted by people who want the best for their particular field. Thus they will imagine a perfect organization and draft a code calling for behavior that requires perfection. Most codes are seeking the ideal and establishing goals which are desirable but not always attainable. However, the State Department of Public Welfare has drafted a different kind of code for county hospitals. This code is not an outline of the ideal manner of operating a hospital but rather calls for the minimum. It was drafted by consultation with people in the Association of County Hospitals and includes only standards that have been established voluntarily and are thus practical. What is called for is the minimum level of care required for patients and then the code sets up recommended standards which the Department of Public Welfare urges the hospitals to work toward. Thus no requirements are set up which are not already being successfully utilized in some of the county hospitals. Among the explicit rules are a 48-hour maximum work week and a 10-hour daily maximum of working hours for employes of the institutions. Around the clock nursing care for patients in the local welfare institutions is required.

This is something new in codes and something that should be very helpful since it supplies both minimum and maximum outlines.

Suffer the Little Children

The dreadful pictures that are now being released of starving babies in the Congo emphasize the hideous price that is paid for power. As Life magazine put it. "they were the deathly harvest of an anarchy which called itself freedom."

Children have always starved in various parts of the world. But in the Twentieth Century when food rots in storage bins and Americans worry about too much fat content in their diets, the tragedy is all the more heightened. The Congo is not alone with its pitiful victims. Thousands will starve in Red China. Many are crippled or weakened in other Asian countries because of food deficiencies. Famine has plagued some parts of the world like China since the beginning of time.

But the horror is not lessened by the knowledge that this is nothing new. The fact that sickens the humanitarian world is that many children must die in hungry despair because petty men do not care whether their wasted bodies line the roads to glory and power. This is not sobsister pathos. It is the worst that hell can offer.

Youth Now Adrift From Basic Principles of Life, Freedom

The Korean war turned up a basic weakness in America—not ea: of strength but of heart. The blood of many young men poured out over the snow and they died in doubt and bitterneess American prisoners of war succumbed to enemy blandishments in unprecedented numbers.

MANAGER ADMITS ERRORS!

TED GILLELAND, Manager

DRASTIC MEASURES MY ONLY SOLUTION SAYS GILLELAND . . .

My appetite was too large this past fall. I overbought - my store and warehouse are bulging with merchandise and new spring stock committed for in January is arriving in large quantities daily. I find myself in a position where I must move stock quickly or else! Consequently, I have drastically slashed prices on hundreds of top quality items from such famous factories as Kroehler, Pullman, Howard Parlor, American of Martinsville, Simmons, Serta, Bassett, International, Hawell, Douglas and many others. All merchandise is factory fresh and of latest design.

Sales will start Thursday, 9 a.m., February 23. Many of these items are one-of-a-kind — so shop early. All items subject to prior sale. This is one sale you can't afford to miss. Come prepared to buy. You won't be disappointed!

Naturally we will be happy to have you use our liberal credit plan. Remember — Thursday at 9 A.M. — LEATH

FURNITURE, Corner of College and Oneida. Read the many listings below - compare with any merchandise of this quality anywhere. Judge for yourself.

$300 Million Spent by Firms For Flowers

Used to Soften Stark Lines of Modern Buildings

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)-Grandmother's house plants have found a

Around $300 million a year is spent by business firms for flowers and foilage to soften the stark lines of modern buildings or to bring warmth to offices, banks, stores and even to data centers of electronic brains.

Sales for indoor beautification of public or working areas of commercial buildings have jumped 300 per cent since 1954, according to the National Clay Pot Manufacturers Association. Its members supply 150 million clay pots a year to some 12,000 commercial growers.

Sales Increase

Retail sales to business have increased much faster than to home owners. This parallels the record boom in commercial and industrial construction in the last six years in such centers as New York, Chicago, Detroit, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Miami.

The biggest sales growth of all in recent years has been for interior use in such buildings.

Softening the outside lines of modern architecture with plants got a big boost almost 30 years ago from the wide usage in Rockefeller Center in New York City. Much later, plants showed up in volume in the reception rooms, executive offices, and secretarial areas of a long list of the nation's biggest corporations.

Indoor Planting

One big impetus for indoor planting came with the opening of the FifthAvenue branch of Manufacturers Trust Co. of New York. Its glass facade revealed to the passer-by a lush interior display of flowers and foilage plants. Since then banks across the country have bought plants by the gross and new commercialbuilding s have followed the trend A New York specialist in large indoor plantings for business and industry, C. Kind & Co., holds that "most architects, decorators and builders are agreed that carefully selected and properly potted live plants are essential to add warmth to modern interiors. Florists have pushed the spread of plants from home to office. Clay pot makers say potted plants made up one-fourth of all retail florist dollar sales in 1950 and one third in 1960. Roadside Stores

But much of the growth in retail sales of plants in recent years has come from the mushrooming of roadside garden stores and self-service plant department in supermarkets and variety stores. The Department of Commerce lists potted plants along with bulbs, vegetable and bedding plants as horticultural specialties. Its 1959 figures put the 10 states producing the most of these specialties in this order: California. Pennsylvania, Florida, Ohio, New York, Illinois. New Jersey. Michigan, Massachusetts, Texas.

Shah of Iran Calls For Honest Elections

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi opened the 20th Iranian Majlis (parliament) Tuesday with a call for a new law to ensure honest elections.

The colorful ceremony went off without a hitch as demonstrations called for by the student-led national front failed to materialize. The students, who look to former Premier Mohammed Mossadegh as their leader, had charged the recent elections were rigged and boycotted them.

The 42-year-old shah had admitted in a news conference that the present voting machinery was outdated, making a fair election impractical.

He called on the new national assembly to draft a new election law to "suit the country's requirements and circumstances."

This is West's chance to look round for the nearest wrench.

Before we see what West ought to do, let's examine what is very likely to happen in the average game of experienced players. West plays a low diamond, and dummy's finesse of the jack of diamonds is taken by East's queen. South later tries a second diamond finesse and runs the rest of the suit. Four diamond tricks give him the contract plus one over Plays King

Now see what happens if West puts up the king of diamonds when the suit is first led. This play cannot cost anything, since the king of diamonds is worthless unless East has the queen.

If declarer wins the first diamond in dummy with the ace, the rest of the suit is dead. And if South allows the king to win the trick, playing West for K-Q-x of diamonds, a later diamond finesse will leave declarer without any diamond tricks at all! Either way South will have a

Notes Paradox In Message On Education

Needs Clarification Of Questions on U. S. Constitution

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON - A singular paradox has emerged in President Kennedy's message to Congress on the use regard to sex. race, creed or color," the president says there would be no federal aid to "non-public" schools for construction or teachers' salaries at the elementary or secondary-school level.

Kennedy points out that exclusion of church schools in the elementary or secondary-school category is "in accordance with the clear prohibition of the Constitution." Presumably he is referring to the clause which says "congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion.'

But, it can be argued, if the appropriation of federal money for church schools at the elementary and secondary-school level is in violation of the Constitution, why isn't it also unconstitutional to appropriate money for scholarship grants or construction loans to colleges that are denominational? Federal Money

Conversely, it can be contended that if it is constitutional to permit federal money to be usedas is being done by congress already in the "GI Bill of Rights" and as proposed again in the president's message - for the education of students of all religious faiths who pick their own colleges, public or private, denominational or non-denominational, then wouldn't it be unconstitutional to deny to the parents of students in private or parochial schools or to the institutions themselves federal aid at the elementary and secondary-school level?

Certainly there is a clause in the Constitution which can be invoked on this point. It calls for the states to apply their laws without discrimination on any ground. This is in the Fourteenth Amendment and has lately received much attention because it orders the states to give "equal protection of the laws" to all citizens. Actually, the states are to administer virtually the whole program proposed by the president.

Building Classrooms Under the president's plan for the college-loan programs, federal funds would be used to assist in the building of classrooms, laboratories, libraries and related structures, as well as residential housing for students and faculty. Also, under the president's recommendations, "additional allowances" are to be given directly to these same colleges urespective of whether they teach religion — "to enable these institutions to accept the additional students without charging an undue increase in fees or suffering en undue financial loss."

The First Amendment to the Constitution, forbidding congress o make any law "respecting an establishment of religion," has een construed by the Supreme Court to mean that the federal government must pursue a policy of "separation of church and tate." This principle has been roadly interpreted by some contitutional lawyers to mean that, he federal government cannot acually support the teaching of my religion. But it has also been eld by the supreme court of the nited States that the "establishnent of religion" clause does not; rohibit use of tax money by the tates to pay for the transportaon of students to parochial chools. Similarly, the "GI Bill Rights." under which federal oney has been furnished to nose who served in the armedi prees in World War II and in e Korean War, has been genrally construed as a grant of ssistance to the individual and of as support of any religious, dablishment when such funds ere spent in church colleges nd universities. End GI Bill To be logical, it would seem at operations under the "GI ll of rights" would have to be nded and all states forbidden to rant any scholarships to "talited and needy" students at the liege level who attend churchpported institutions, or else it ould have to be recognized that c taxes of citizens of all relious denominations can be used of only to support construction of building facilities in public bools but also in private or parhial schools at all levels, whe-

The president's message introices a paradox that needs to clarified, at least insofar as e constitutional questions are

ncerned. (Copyright, 1961) U.S. CHOICE RED OWL INSURED (BLADE CUTS)

A special meeting was called since the regular school board session is not scheduled until mid-March and the board is anxious to begin construction of the addition. The council will consider the resolution at tonight's session.

Earlier this month the board of education met jointly with the council to explain the need for a high school addition due to crowded conditions. Together they discussed the feasibility of adding

The Ledgers added another two Chuters were limited to 10.

The 29-point eruption of the Dutchmen in the last quarter was their top output for any period this season. The game also pro duced two other "firsts" for the Chuters as it was the first time they moved past the 60-poin mark in scoring and it was the first time a team member reach ed the 20-point mark.

bleheader will begin at the unheard-of time of 10:30 a.m. Studies have shown that the winds off the Pacific don't start whooping it up until about 2 p.m. daily. Thus, the teams ordinarily can get in three or four innings of reasonably peaceful baseball by that time, Stan Musial now ranks in the all-time "top 10" in 12 different categories of batting. No other player can match this record.

It's pretty hard to ignore hasketball completely. We hear that the Kimberly cage coaching job is proving to be one of the most eagerly-sought-after in this area in a long time. The vacancy, of course, will exist after the current season-when Gil frank's resignation takes

The revolution, he said, is a protest against the status quo. "It strikes against inefficient instructional processes that have persisted in elementary, secondary and collegiate schools." Electronic Teaching

He pointed to the development of electronic teaching aids as an important characteristic of the revolution. "Thousands of high school and college teachers have improved their presentations by the use of audio - visual aids,"

The Wisconsin educator said that educational research, applied and basic, was the most significant characteristic of the revolution. To the extent that the revolt is research - oriented it offers hope of establishing foundations of educational practice in which confidence may be placed. Dean Stiles traced the history of the educational revolution, showing that seeds were planted more than a half century ago when "educational leaders dared to dream that higher quality in instruction for elementary and secondary schools could be achieved." The seeds sprouted and were cultivated during the 1930's and came into full bloom after World War IL.

He warned that "irresponsible opportunists and publicity seekers confuse a restless and uncertain public with sensational and intemperate attacks." But he assured the audience that leadership for instructional change is now in the hands of educators whose personal motives are reputable, whose scholarship is sound and whose commitments are to schools.

Senate Unit Asks for Bill On Retirement

All Counties but Milwaukee Would Have to Participate

MADISON (AP)-The Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs Tuesday recommended for passage a bill to require all counties except Milwaukee to participate in the Wisconsin Retirement

"A basic prejudice" against retirement programs and employe organizations has kept about 40 per cent of the state's county governments from joining the program, said John Lawton, representing the Wisconsin Council of County and Municipal Employes.

The proposal was opposed as being too costly for many small counties, by A. J. Thelan, a Wisconsin County Boards Association representative.

In other action, the committee recommended passage of a bill which would raise mileage allowances for state employes using their own automobiles in their work. The new scale would give workers eight instead of seven cents for the first 2,000 miles driven each month, and raise rates from six to seven cents for each mile thereafter.

Expected opposition to a proposed constitutional amendment which would lower the voter residency requirement in Wisconsin from one year to six months failed to materialize. The committee recommended passage of the measure.
